AmeriCorps, the domestic Peace Corps, gives citizens the opportunity to engage in full or part-time service to their community. Working through a grassroots network of more than 1,000 national and local nonprofit and faith-based organizations, AmeriCorps members serve communities and address local environmental, educational, public safety, homeland security, or other human needs to make communities stronger.

AmeriCorps members help solve problems and make communities stronger. Working with national, state, and local nonprofit organizations, AmeriCorps members recruit and train volunteers, tutor and mentor at-risk youth, make schools and neighborhoods safer, build and rehabilitate homes, clean rivers and restore parks, help seniors live independently, provide health care in underserved rural and Native American communities, and provide emergency and long-term assistance to victims of natural disasters, among other things. AmeriCorps members serve in communities across America, in both urban and rural areas.

Federal funding priorities for the 2010-11 program year include: education, healthy futures, clean energy/environment, veterans and opportunity, as described in the Edward M. Kennedy Serve America Act (2009) and the 2010-11 New York State AmeriCorps*State Request for Proposals.

Becoming a Member

An individual must be a U.S. citizen, national, or legal permanent resident alien of the U.S. to be an AmeriCorps member. An individual must be at least 17 years old, although some service opportunities require an individual to be at least 18. For most programs there are no upper age limits. Some programs have specific skill requests in certain areas, and others look for a bachelor's degree or a few years of related volunteer/job experience. For others, an individual's motivation and commitment may be the primary requirement.

Individuals interested in becoming an AmeriCorps member in New York State should check the comprehensive regional program directory listing, which can be found at the following address: <http://www.newyorkersvolunteer.ny.gov/NationalService/Map.aspx?programType=ACSP> and contact the programs they are interested in directly for additional information, application, and program start dates.

AmeriCorps Education Award

Full-time AmeriCorps members perform 1700 hours of service and upon completion earn an education award of $4,725 (Members serving in 2010-11 receive an Ed Award of $5,350). Full-time AmeriCorps members also receive a living allowance, are eligible for health insurance, and if income eligible, child care. Part-time members receive a pro-rated education award and in some cases, part-time members are also eligible for a pro-rated living allowance. Members also receive training and learn valuable life skills. There are also reduced part-time positions available with pro-rated benefits.

More Information

For other eligibility criteria and more information about AmeriCorps, visit the New York State Commission website at www.NewYorkersVolunteer.ny.gov or the national AmeriCorps website at www.americorps.org.

State Commission on National & Community Service

The New York State Commission on National and Community Service is a Governor-appointed body of statewide leaders in the service industry established by Executive Order in 1994. The passage of the federal National and Community Service Trust Act in 1993 required all states to establish state commissions to receive federal funding from the Corporation for National and Community Service. The purpose of the funding was to enable states and programs authorized under the national service laws to build and reinforce a culture of service, citizenship and responsibility and to enable commissions to institute accountability and efficiency in the administration of national service programs. Furthermore, this would allow national and community service programs to be more responsive to State and local needs.

AmeriCorps*State programs are managed by the State Commission which provides funding for organizations to run local programs that engage individuals from all backgrounds in community service. In New York State, more than 2,000 members will have provided services to their communities by the end of the year. To meet the specific needs of their communities, organizations throughout New York State apply for AmeriCorps grants through the New York State Commission on National and Community Service. The funded programs recruit and train individuals who are willing to serve as AmeriCorps members. In return for their service, AmeriCorps members receive a living stipend and an education award that can be applied to outstanding student loans or future higher educational and vocational training pursuits.

Community service offers citizens a way to improve their lives while also bringing substantive, enduring change to their communities. It enables citizens to solve problems and strengthen their communities in the areas of education, public safety, the environment, health care, housing and other human needs.

The Commission also collaborates with the Corporation for National Service State Office and the New York State Education Department on community service initiatives in the State. These include AmeriCorps*National, AmeriCorps VISTA, Senior Corps, and Learn and Service America.

AmeriCorps VISTA (Volunteers in Service to America) members serve in nonprofit organizations across New York State and are dedicated to strengthening communities by increasing the capability of people to improve the conditions of their own lives through employment training, literacy programs, housing assistance, health education, and neighborhood revitalization.

Senior Corps enables individuals aged 55 and older to change and improve the quality of life through service opportunities. The Corps helps these individuals find service opportunities related to their interests close to their homes. The Senior Corps includes three programs - Foster Grandparents, the Senior Companion Program, and the Retired and Senior Volunteer Program (RSVP).

Learn and Serve America supports teachers and community members who involve young people in community service related to their studies in school. More than 38,000 students and program participants in New York State currently provide critical services to their communities through Learn and Serve America. Service learning programs help students become interested in their communities and learn how they can affect the quality of life in them while at the same time, increasing their academic skills.

Northeast Parent and Child Society addresses the need to weatherize and provide energy efficiency upgrades to sub-standard, low-income, owner-occupied housing or low-income rental properties within targeted economically-distressed neighborhoods in the City of Schenectady. These weatherization/energy rehabilitation activities will be provided to homeowners by the City of Schenectady through Schenectady County housing rehabilitation agencies. Members are trained on energy efficiency and will provide volunteer services under the supervision of Northeast's Green Construction Trainer and four community based collaborating organizations. Also, this program prepares the members with the concepts and certification required to perform energy audits, retrofits, and upgrades to low income homes in the City of Schenectady. Members will then perform remediation activities and performance audits following the remediation.

City Year New York (CYN) is a full-time, 10-month, team-based AmeriCorps program focused on public education, after-school programs and volunteer generation. City Year corps members, who are diverse 17-24 year-olds, serve in schools from the first bell in the morning until the last child leaves the after-school program in the late afternoon. Together, they help students improve attendance, behavior and coursework. CYN seeks to field a corps of 234 members to improve reading and math skills for elementary and middle school children, boost their interest in learning, create after-school programming, and increase volunteering. Program will deliver targeted literacy tutoring, library enrichment programs, after-school programs for youth, which promote education and community involvement and volunteer opportunities for all New Yorkers.

Working in partnership with OCFS and John Jay College of Criminal Justice, the Center now proposes to take this Public Safety Corps model of youth intervention to scale, expanding its capacity to serve young people throughout New York City. The renamed New York City Justice Corps will intervene to break the cycle of unmet educational needs and delinquency in struggling neighborhoods citywide. AmeriCorps members will work with a minimum of 800 young people: those at risk of juvenile justice system involvement due to high risk factors like chronic truancy; those with first-time contact with the justice system; those with delinquency cases pending in the family court system; and those who are sent to juvenile prisons operated by OCFS or are returning from confinement. Whether youths come into contact with the Justice Corps as first time offenders or with a significant history of delinquency, members will provide wrap-around, multi-systemic services to promote educational engagement, address unmet individual and family needs with the goal of improving school attendance and achievement, and get them on track for high school graduation.

AmeriCorps members serve in various sites throughout Grand Street Settlement, mostly, but not entirely, limited to the Lower East Side of Manhattan. Members focus on the initiatives of school success, school readiness, school safety and community collaboration, serving the children, youth, seniors and families of the community. Grand Street is an AmeriCorps program with strong community linkages. The program provides quality support and guidance to children and youth, by linking the school environment with after-school programming. Services and activities include after-school programs, which provide tutoring and homework assistance and school-readiness programs that stimulate the cognitive, social, motor and verbal skills of pre-school children.

AmeriCorps members create a safe environment at neighborhood schools and housing developments that experience significant issues of crime and safety and assist local police precincts in identifying individuals interested in becoming auxiliary police. Throughout the year, AmeriCorps members sponsor community service projects and special events that inspire community collaboration and generate volunteerism of all ages in the neighborhood.

The Harlem Children's Zone (HCZ) AmeriCorps members serve with community stakeholders and HCZ staff in the Harlem Children's Zone Project, a neighborhood-based network of services. HCZ members work side-by-side with parents, teachers, principals, and community residents to build a community in Harlem that is a safe and healthy place to raise children.

AmeriCorps members provide in-class and after school literacy-based and conflict resolution training for children in Harlem elementary schools, tutor, mentor, instruct in computer skills, improve awareness of health and nutrition, and counsel and support children and families through the Harlem Children's Zone Project, a neighborhood-based network of services. These include:

- The Baby College – A weekly program that provides parents of children ages 0-2 with parent training
- The HCZ Health Initiative – A collaboration between HCZ, Harlem Hospital Pediatrics and the Mailman School of Public Health at Columbia University, to identify and link to effective treatments for every child in HCZ who has asthma
- The Renaissance University for Community Education (TRUCE) – A year-round, extended day youth development program where members tutor and conduct college preparation activities.

NYC Civic Corps will place 150 AmeriCorps members with local nonprofits and government agencies to develop sustainable impact volunteer programs. NYC Civic Corps teams will assist with a combination of capacity building and direct service activities. NYC Service aims to achieve three overarching goals: channeling the power volunteers to address local challenges, making New York City the easiest city in America in which to serve, and ensuring every young person is taught about civic engagement and has an opportunity to serve. NYC Civic Corps members are dispatched to local organizations for one year where they serve as "force multipliers" and assist in the development of sustainable impact volunteer programs. By deploying AmeriCorps members to local organizations, NYC Service will be able to substantially increase volunteerism, engaging more New Yorkers in efforts to help neighbors in need, and tackle the city's toughest challenges.

Graduation and college attendance among vulnerable populations in New York City is much lower than in other populations. The New York City Board of Education has made increased college attendance a priority. To address this need, ReServe proposes to launch READY/ReServe AmeriCorps (RRA), an encore service program that will recruit, train and deploy 60 AmeriCorps members 55 and older to serve as part-time college advisors in 40-60 under-resourced secondary schools, supporting regular school staff in the delivery of services that will lead to higher college acceptance rates for disadvantaged youth. Working under the supervision of school principals or guidance counselors, RRA members will work at the schools and conduct the following activities, which will take place both during the day and evenings to accommodate parent/guardian needs: increasing college awareness to incoming 9th graders, and provide financial aid support and advising to students and their families.

Community Works is designed to bring preventive programming to NYC children by connecting AmeriCorps members with schools and school-based, after-school programs to provide under-served students with academic support, community service opportunities and enrichment activities. These AmeriCorps members will engage youth in meaningful programs and service projects that increase academic and community engagement and strive to improve the communities where students live. Community Works members will work to improve the bridge between families, communities and school staff by offering opportunities for joint community/volunteer service. Additionally, AmeriCorps members will enable schools and after-school programs to serve more youth by reducing overall staffing costs and introducing a cadre of committed volunteers. The initiative will also pilot a new role for full-time members to provide academic support to high school students during the school day and continue their service in the afternoon through the after-school program. Community Works interventions address the unmet educational needs of youth and enhance the outreach of services to under-represented youth and families.

Yeshiva Kehilath Yaakov will recruit 42 AmeriCorps members who will be placed in Head Start programs and elementary, middle, and high schools at four different program sites. Goals for the Community Leadership Education and Development (LEAD) project include improved outcomes for children and youth and strengthening the community as a whole. The program will ensure a brighter future for youngsters, one of the Corporation's four strategic initiatives with participating youth demonstrating leadership qualities, increasing positive behaviors, and improving classroom performance. Members will serve as mentors and role models for at-risk youth, promoting positive behaviors and healthy self-esteem, and engaging youth in volunteer activities; will expand the capacity of the pre-literacy skill building program at Head Start sites by working with children on special activities that support their reading and language skills development; and will mobilize a pool of volunteers to strengthen community service projects.

SUNY Stony Brook University AmeriCorps program is entitled "AmeriCorps Volunteers for Community Service". AmeriCorps VCS members are composed of the University's undergraduate and graduate students who commit to serve people in need. Participants address community needs in the following areas: health care, education, public safety, human services, and the environment. Members serve by performing tasks such as mentoring for at-risk youth, conducting hunger campaigns, working on environmental projects, leading community health campaigns, and responding to natural disasters by providing emergency relief for victims. Their activities focus also on meeting needs of vulnerable populations and communities during the current economic recession. AmeriCorps members learn new skills, acquire leadership experiences, and gain a sense of satisfaction from positively impacting the lives of others.

The Next Step AmeriCorps program focuses on developing and implementing a transition plan for youth leaving State custody at the OCFS Industry School in Rush, New York, building community connections for these youth, and providing a mentoring relationship for these youth when they return to the community. The Project will place a full-time AmeriCorps member in strategically located community Organizations each within one of the city of Rochester's four quadrants to which Industry students return. Trained, Full-Time AmeriCorps members will help recruit Part-time AmeriCorps members living in these quadrant neighborhoods. These members will be trained in mentoring Industry school youth and other high-risk youth by OCFS Industry School, Pathways to Peace (a gang intervention agency), and Human Services and Service Learning Departments from local colleges. Each Industry School youth, while in facility, will develop a transition plan through the Nazareth College Transition Planning Program and their Part-Time AmeriCorps Member Mentors.

Upon returning to the community, each Industry youth will be connected to the neighborhood-based, full-time NextStep AmeriCorps members and their individual effective community connections to the resources referenced in their Transition Plan Goals including those for Career Planning, Education & Training, Mobility, Social Relationships, Recreation, Personal Health, and Self-Advocacy. The goal of the NextStep AmeriCorps program is to reduce recidivism, and build opportunities for the youth to have a successful transition back into their communities and into adulthood.

Fedcap was founded in New York City in 1935 by three men with physical disabilities who shared a powerful vision of achieving independence for themselves and for others. Their mission is to empower people with barriers to move towards economic independence as valued members of the workforce. Each year Fedcap's evaluation, vocational training, job placement and counseling services, employment programs, and support and advocacy programs help more than 2,000 Americans overcome obstacles, rebuild their lives, and find and keep meaningful employment. Their comprehensive approach includes thorough vocational evaluations to help determine appropriate career paths for clients followed by vocational training in a variety of fields including custodial, culinary arts, data entry/document imaging, office skills, hospitality, and mailroom/messenger services. Fedcap's New York State licensed business and trade school offers small classes and individualized attention from highly qualified instructors. After graduation, all clients receive career counseling, job placement services, and ongoing on-the-job support. Graduates obtain jobs at private companies or with Fedcap in New York, New Jersey, and Washington, D.C. The majority of the jobs Fedcap are able to offer are made possible through the New York State Preferred Source Program, New Jersey ACCSES, and the federal AbilityOne Program. Fedcap also operates a licensed home health care agency; Chelton Loft, a clubhouse for adults with severe and persistent mental illness; a Partial Care Mental Health Program for adults with developmental disabilities and mental illness; a Youth Program for young adults transitioning in to the workforce; and a Veterans Program assisting returning veterans with their transition to civilian life.
